

Concrete Washout Systems Unveils Industry's First Portable Concrete Washout Bin for Builders and Contractors

Concrete Washout System Addresses the Need for Safe, Responsible and Environmentally Friendly Disposal of Concrete Spoil on Construction Sites

Elk Grove, CA.-April 14, 2003-Concrete Washout Systems, Inc., a division of Elk Grove Waste Management, LLC, unveiled its patent-pending Concrete Washout Bin that is designed for washing out concrete trucks and pump trucks on site.

The Concrete Washout Bin is a portable, self-contained and watertight bin that controls, captures and contains concrete washout material and runoff. The bin replaces the old washout sites, which are costly, unsightly and damaging to the environment and allows drivers to clean their trucks, pumps and equipment on site. Concrete Washout Systems will haul away concrete washout material in the washout bin and recycle the water and contents in an environmentally friendly manner, which relieves the homebuilder and contractor of the burden.

"Concrete Washout Systems is pioneering the way for responsible removal of concrete washout material. We saw an overwhelming need for balancing the construction industry's needs with environmental impact concerns," stated Mark Jenkins, President and Co-Founder. "We specifically designed the washout bin for commercial use by contractors and builders to replace the dedicated worksite washout areas. The Washout Bin has the versatility to be placed almost anywhere on the jobsite, providing convenience to the contractor and limiting damage to the jobsite," added Mark.
